U.S. National Security Strategy renews American leadership and focuses on violent extremism

959 words - Globalization has intensified the dangers, from international terrorism and the spread of deadly technologies, to economic upheaval and climate change. The world is changing along with the emergence of a broad and complex array of challenges. "This is a time of sweeping change," United States National Security Advisor James Jones said during a news conference at the Foreign Press Center on May 28, 2010.

Maldives - President meets with the Deputy Leader of the Australian Opposition

President Mohamed Nasheed has this morning met with Deputy Leader of the Liberal Party of Australia Hon. Julie Bishop.

At the meeting held at the Parliament House, President Nasheed and Hon Julie Bishop discussed the close relations that exist between the Maldives and Australia.

Discussing climate change with the Hon Bishop, President Nasheed highlighted the challenges faced by low-lying islands nations such as the Maldives due to climate change. He also noted the role of parliaments in making necessary legislations to address the issue of climate change.

Julie Bishop said the Maldives has always maintained close and friendly relations with Australia and expressed confidence that the President's visit would further enhance the relations.

4 main solutions are available.

Our rate

The rate varies according to the solution you choose and to the number of users.

In case you choose 'Information Center Access' and/or 'Global Access' and if there are 2,000 people within your organization, our basic rate will be calculated according to an average of 2,000 potential users.

However and in case you choose the 'Information Center Access', you can re-evaluate the rate with our staff according to the real attendance of your information center or you can opt for a hybrid solution that would combine 'Information Center Access' and 'Personalized Access'.

Large number of users makes you benefit from exceptional rate. A rate's reduction applies to any 'Personalized Access' from 5 users.

Your needs

Our staff is always available to assess your needs. Any inquiry or specificity will be taken into account with great care in order to propose you the best solution.
